May God forbid our saying on this page the things that merely please. We would be humble in our opinions, we would be considerate of the opinions of others; but we would not be unfaithful of the immutable law of cause and effect, for therein lies the wisdom of the ages.

TAMPERING WITH DYNAMITE

From what can be gathered in the way of information concerning the now famous repudiation of Dr. Riddell, Canada's representative at the League of Nations, over the application of oil sanctions, it seems that the Canadian government was afraid that Canada might lead the world nations into a new war. So the Canadian representative's actions were promptly repudiated.

All that Dr. Riddell did was to move that oil sanctions be applied against Italy. Now if that had been actually carried out Italy would have been liable to retaliate in such a way that war would be inevitable. Over a war starts these days it is quite likely to spread rapidly.

Some seem to think that Anthony Eden, now British foreign minister, astutely manoeuvred Dr. Riddell into the leading role. Anyway the move came to be known as "The Canadian resolution".

The action of the Canadian government in backing away from the whole plan is not calculated to increase Canada's international prestige, but it may be a safe and sound policy at that.

This country has plenty of troubles of her own to attend to without becoming involved in European disputes and alignments. In fact Canada should be discreetly silent at Geneva. There is too much "TNT" in the atmosphere over there.

We get it now. Spring and Prosperity are around the same corner.

NEWSPAPER IDEALS

In an editorial in the Drumheller Review, Barney Halpin reveals that his great ambition in the newspaper business is to be able to get everything he hears printed. If he could get in such a position the ambition of his life would be fulfilled.

Then Mr. Halpin indicates some things right in Drumheller that could be written about (and apparently would if he dared). Seemingly one incident concerned a scandal in which a R.C.M.P. constable is involved. Another instance centers around a scandal in a Drumheller home. Then there is a supposed "dope ring" and other centers of vice about which gossip is rampant.

We think Mr. Halpin is entirely mistaken in his ideas of what readers want in a newspaper and also we think that it is never lower such a style of journalism he would not only nauseate his subscribers but also himself, even if he could evade legal axes.

He would soon die of the bath-one cup of searching immoral dumps for dirt. Only certain characters with depraved minds could keep up such a line of action for very long.

The newspaper's job is to tell the people the good things of life from the real, to be happy in any success, big or little, achieved by a son and daughter or worthy parents than in the heartaches of those parents who see disgrace heaped on their children.

It is cleaner and nicer telling about the doings of the many people who are trying to live decently and to keep their friends and neighbors than to splash on the printed page the lurid details of a home wrecked by wrong doing.

A newspaper which confines its columns to decent, respectable news, and eliminates as much of the sordid and squalid as possible, gains in the admiration of its readers. The other kind of a newspaper either has a short life or its circulation is confined to the puerile minded people.

MAGAZINE OF OUTDOOR SPORT

A new publication came to our desk in the form of "Western Canada Outdoors", published in Edmonton with Colin G. Groff as editor.

This bright monthly is devoted to hunting, fishing, fur, forestry, conservation, winter sports and tourist attractions. The subscriptions is $1.00 a year.

There appears to be ample scope for this baby magazine in Alberta and Western Canada and we trust it will meet with a good reception on the part of the people interested in the things it sponsors.

Such a magazine can render splendid service to the province by drawing attention to its attractions in the way of scenery and also to its excellent hunting grounds and fishing waters.

THE PERMANENT INDUSTRY

In his maiden speech in the provincial legislature W. E. Cain, M.L.A. for Bow Valley, stressed the importance of agriculture and warned against the diversion of interest from that industry into mining.

The warning was timely. The nation that neglects its agriculture, particularly in a period of depression, follows a false economy and one bound to lead to seriously adverse consequences.

Thrifty and enterprising agriculture is a building up process. Mining is a wasting industry.

The hand of death is ever present in the mining towns and cities. Everyone knows the end will come within the space of a score or so years at the latest. Nothing is really permanent.

The ghost towns of Colorado and other mining states stand today empty and silent, witnesses of the impermanence of mining.

Where are the hordes who struggled over Chilochee pass on the trail of '98 into the Yukon? Alaska knows few of them or their descendants any more.

The life that pulsed in Ballarat and Kalgoorlie is now strangely quiet.

In a generation or so the mole-like burrowing on the Rand reef in South Africa will be deserted galleries and tunnels.

Agriculture on the contrary is a continuing industry. As long as the land is cared for it will continue to supply food to the hungry and clothing to keep people warm.

A JOB FOR ALL

E. L. Gray, manager of the Eastern Irrigation District, gave encouraging facts in a recent address dealing with the district.

A foundation has been laid on which a superstructure of considerable magnitude can be erected, but all—or the great majority at least—must help to achieve complete success.

The progress of this venture depends on every farmer in the district and also every resident of all the towns and villages. No one man, nor any half a dozen, can do the job.

"Stand off by yourself in your dreaming. And all of your dreams are vain; No grandeur of soul or spirit Can man by himself attain. It is well we shall dwell as brothers; As brothers then we must toil; We must act with a common purpose As we work in a common soil."

And each who would see accomplished The dreams that he's proud to own, Must strive for the goal with his fellows, For no man can do it alone."

TREATMENT OF VETERANS

Canada will not follow the lead of the United States in the soldier bonus grant but the Dominion does very well for her veterans of the Great War, or at least the most of those deserving aid.

The recent budget showed estimates for the expenditure of $55,000,000 for various forms of aid to the veterans. For a country of but 10,000,000 people that is a fairly high contribution.

The United States bonus to veterans is in lieu of pensions. Canada follows a pension system for those wounded in the war or whose health was impaired by active service.

The secret of happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one has to do.—James M. Barrie.

I HAVE LOVED

These things have I loved: a roop lined with old looks, firelight dancing and before it a deep red leather chair, and a dish of apples to eat; a streaming April rain with street alive with running water, an old raincoat and slouchy hat, and a mile to walk; an early autumn afternoon tea party, sunlight making glad the window panes, a cup of scalding tea and a friend to talk with. Music, even the stars are shining and part of me swinging past their brightness and laughing and crying in my ecstasy; the sobbing of a violin in a half-dark room; a box of red geraniums at a cottage window, a boy, young and carefree, whooping down the street chasing an iron hoop; a long lonely walk through the woods to hear the birds calling and to see young rabbits scampering; seeing, even now, the golden splendor of La Carmancita, as she waits to whirl into her dance; the wet, misty beauty of a Turner; to walk alone on a spring morning, down a silent street, and to feel the warming and vitalizing heat of the rising sun; the fierce animal joy of running, or of plunging into the green waters of a mountain lake; these things, but best of all, I have loved my friends, a hearty hand-clasp, a heart-felt greeting and the assuring knowledge they care.—The Gateway.

Ten Minutes with the Scotch Philosopher

The undertakers of Winnipeg have declined to accept the stickers offered by the undertakers of that little town (to the left of it) that this community will again have the pleasure of harvesting a crop similar to those bumper crops of the past. We are basing our belief on the fact that we have as heavy a fall of snow as we have ever seen in the 25 years we have lived here, which has been accompanied with steady severe cold weather. The weatherman has been gradually closing down on us since the beginning of November, reaching the climax during the past week. . . . A winter of heavy snowfall and low temperatures has always been the forerunner of a good crop in the past and we believe it will still hold good.—The Strathmore Standard.

Speaking over the air in the interests of the grain exchange, a man said that the wheat producer is one of the few individuals who can immediately convert the fruits of his labor into hard cash. Quite so. But it should also be remembered that the farmer is also obliged to take what others offer, regardless of the cost of production. With last year's low price, we'll say.

For the first time in seven years the bears in the Calgary stock market have been liberated. Now every time we go outdoors and feel the Arctic breezes playing hide-and-seek up and down the legs of our overalls, we envy those hairy monsters snoring the hours away.

It must be a grand life. No chores to perform; no need to worry about the weather; no need to get up and go to work; no need to get up and go to work; no need to get up and go to work.

By the way, fellows, what do you think has become of the chinooks that used to come swooping about other winters?

Mr. Johnston, who dabbles in scientific problems, has a rather queer explanation. He says that nature got so peeved at the amount of hot air we all expended during the election period, she decided to move her plants to regions where competition would not be so keen.

Does this seem reasonable? The optimism of the western farmer sits rather above repeated failure and wintry weather.

Going to the P.O. the other day, when the thermometer was 32 below, we saw Old George buying an M.O. for three dollars.

He was sending away for a collection of grape seeds. It is to be hoped that the fine old gentlemen will have lots of luck with them, for when fortune smiles on his garden in varieties a lot of his truck finds its way into the pots and pans of his less fortunate fellow citizens in a nearby town.

One of the most enjoyable radio programs is that of Major Bowes and his amateur.

The major is doing splendid work, but his success has led to criticism of the most foolish nature.

It seems that the amateurs are required to go on for a few releases before appearing at the mike. And why not? As the old saying goes, "Practice makes perfect."

It would be nice if the radio commission would stage a similar program, once in a while. With all the facilities at its command, this would be a simple matter.

For two generations Canada has produced many entertainers whose names are familiar the world over. Plenty more talent is doubtless available, and the radio is the logical place to develop it.

The Brooklyn (Mass.) Enterprise says: "Nothing annoys a woman like having her friends drop in unexpectedly and find the house looking as it usually does."

Like his predecessor, holding the office of minister of education, Mr. Abernethy is meeting with a considerable amount of opposition in his efforts to settle the difficulties surrounding the rural schools of the province. The hiring of school teachers seems to be the chief bone of contention. Through the medium of the proposed act all teachers would come under the jurisdiction of central boards.

Those who favor the change insist that the teachers' positions would be more secure and thus lead to greater efficiency.

Others, and these seem to be in the majority, claim that since the local districts have to pay the piper they should also have the right to call the tune.

Nobody is suffering very much under the present system, and consequently there is no need to be hasty. Prudence therefore suggests that the bill be held over for another year.

A little study of the problems involved would probably lead to something that would be acceptable to all. This goal is worth striving for.

EXTRACTS FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Good Crop Next Year
We are going to have a good crop this year. No next year about this forecast, remember, and we are staking our reputation (what little there is left of it) that this community will again have the pleasure of harvesting a crop similar to those bumper crops of the past. We are basing our belief on the fact that we have as heavy a fall of snow as we have ever seen in the 25 years we have lived here, which has been accompanied with steady severe cold weather. The weatherman has been gradually closing down on us since the beginning of November, reaching the climax during the past week. . . . A winter of heavy snowfall and low temperatures has always been the forerunner of a good crop in the past and we believe it will still hold good.—The Strathmore Standard.

The Price of Gold

It would appear that any possibility of an early rise in the price of gold is gradually receding.

It is almost safe to assume that unless Washington is given an excuse by France where elections are to be held in the spring when likely one of the prominent issues will be deflation, that the United States government is not likely to take any action.

From observations and opinions of the press generally and the claim, financial circles do not seem to believe gold will go higher, unless the action in France creates a position whereby other nations might take action with regard to the price of gold.—Carlson Observer.

Just Anybody

There is one thing certain. If Mr. Lachar had to start a newspaper, there is no law in the land which can prevent him doing so. We can furnish him with a list of good companies who will sell him printing paper, typesetting machines and all such. Getting a staff should be easy enough, because it is well known that any person can run a newspaper. Peterboro Examiner.

Chatter Column

Al Hansen was teasing off at the first hole, and three foursums were waiting for him. At the first stroke—him had a world of power behind it, he missed the ball completely. Once more he missed the two ball. This, in fact, happened four times. The crowd was embarrassed, but not Al. With an engaging smile he turned on them all: "Tough course," he said.

It seems that two boxers were fighting the main bout at a small club. At the end of the first round the kid who was taking a bad beating landed to the corner and was ready to call it a night. His manager shouted, "Don't be a fool. He ain't laid a glove on you."

The same thing happened in the second round, and the soft-hearted manager repeated his speech. "That's swell. See, I told you he ain't laying a glove on you."

In the third the boxer landed a point kick's head like a ball around a poster table's corner, and he managed to stagger into his corner. He looked up at his manager and roared, "Don't tell me. I know. He ain't laid a glove on me. Well, watch the referee, then, because something in that ring is giving me a helluva beating."

Nebraska Meets The 'Depression'

An editorial entitled "Recipe for Public Tragedy" in the Omaha Business for February says: "While chatting about taxes and public debts the other day, someone mentioned that the state of Nebraska had no debt." Continuing the editorial says, "We have just read that State's recipe for public tragedy. The so-called 'Nebraska Plan' as counselling the community to:

1. Pay as you go; issue no state bonds, few country bonds.
2. Resist new, encroaching forms of taxation, particularly patulous taxes.
3. Watch public spending and watch the creditors.

4. Remember that even in these changing times the functions of local government are essentially the same as they were 15 years ago and should cost no more.

"Chambers of Commerce, farmer organizations and newspapers denounced the people to watch public expenditures with a microscope, not to search for new taxes with a telescope. This concerted effort, it is estimated, has brought about 35 per cent reduction in taxes.

"More astounding yet is the news that Nebraska's new capital building is not only built free, but that the capital levy to provide for its construction produced more than was needed so that a $100,000 dividend was declared to the taxpayers.

"In today's maze of public extravagance we are apt to forget 'it can be done'."

Born 30 Years Too—Late

Thirty years ago beer was a fashionable drink and was free from taxes, three dozen for a quarter; milk was a quart, the butcher gave free live for the cat and treated the kids to a ride on the street car. The hard work for $2 a week and did the washing; women did not powder, paint, smoke or play poker. Men wore boots and chaps, wore hats, didn't shave, spat on the sidewalk, worked eleven hours a day and never went on strike. No one was operated on for appendicitis or stomach ailments. Boys lived to a ripe old age just the same and walked miles to enjoy Sunday dinner with friends.

Today everybody rides in automobiles or airplanes, plays poker, goes to movies, smokes cigarettes, drinks lemonade, plays miniature golf, spends a month's salary in a world series baseball game, and blames high cost of living on the government. They never go to bed the same day they get up and think they are having a wonderful time. This is the day of fast cars, a death rate of $2,000 from car accidents alone, profiteers, excessive taxes, hard raids and prohibition. If you think life is worth living call in and pay your storekeeper.—How Valley Resource (Arrowwood).

Oh, I guess one more little one won't hurt me.

See, I know this road like a book, or I'd show down on the curve. I'm going straight home tired and cold. If I get a shock when I'm standing on this road?

Those trains always whistle a mile before they get to the crossing. Climb down out of that truck and say that!

Now watch me open that bottle without a corker, just by applying a little leverage in the right place.

Montaigne: That's a recomender.

Sam: Yeah, see if you can't get that rabbit with the same old.

Fashionable Housewives

It wasn't very long but it now has become fashionable to buy at home. The reason is that years of "tight" money have made housewives think. As a result it has become unfashionable to order a far-away "bargain". It now is fashionable to accelerate the flow of home profit.

Fashionable housewives now buy at fair prices in Bassano.

Local and Personal News

The city of Red Deer has set a mill rate of 40 for 1936.

Roy Smith, our V-8 dealer, was a business caller in Calgary last week.

George Scott was home over the week-end from the University of Alberta.

Grant Elliott of Calgary was a caller in Bassano for a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Olive Nesbitt and daughter, Arlene, of Brooks, were visiting in Bassano for a few days last week.

Mayor I. F. Shacker of Hanna was re-elected to office, polling 285 votes to his opponent's, Albert Lindstrom, ninety-five.

Fourteen rinks entered Hanna's 2-day local mixed bonspiel, which started last Thursday in 40 below zero weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berry of Brooks were in Bassano on Tuesday, attending the funeral services of Chrissy Playfair.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Connolly of Calgary were visiting Mrs. Connolly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Johnston, over the week-end.

Fifty-six degrees below zero was recorded last Thursday night on two thermometers, one at the depot and one at Stiller's drugstore. It is, of course still cold, and, in the words of the Medicine Hat News: "This is a cold one, but it's not the worst."

EDMONTON LETTER

brought down later this week, Premier Aberhart and Hon. R. C. Manning said, it will probably reach the house about Friday. That will be the real beginning of the main tussle in the legislature, with cabinet ministers and members of the opposition taking part in a spirited discussion. No forecast of what is contained in the budget is possible at present.

Among the two dozen bills that have been introduced, and seven of them given second reading, the most important is one to amend the Municipal Hospital act. It provides that any corporation which is a ratepayer is empowered to nominate one person who is an officer or employee of the corporation, as a ratepayer in the district for the purposes of the act. It also empowers the board to fix the amount of hospital tax normally required in respect of one ratepayer.

Information on the cost of Major R. H. Douglas, reconstruction adviser, under his two-year contract was asked by G. H. Van Allen, Liberal and the request was agreed to by the government. John Irwin, Calgary, Conservative wanted to know whether any negotiations were going on between the government and other parties for the sale of the provincial telephones and Hon. W. A. Fallick replied that there were none, though engineers from a New York City firm had been given leave to investigate the system. A request for the tabling of all documents covering the incorporation of the Alberta Publishing Company limited, was refused by Hon. W. J. Huggill on the ground that all the information is available in the proper department without any limits for whoever wanted to get it.

It was revealed by a return made at the request of D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader, that Alberta's loans from banks amounted to $57,000,000, which has not been increased since the present government came into office. Security held by the Imperial Bank comprises an assignment of the amount due the province by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. on the northern railway lines, which is approximately $5,000,000. Replying to another question by D. M. Duggan, Hon. Charles Crockett said the amount of school lands fund, turned over to the province with the transfer of the natural resources was $9,541,000.

The denial given by Whip J. H. Unwin, to W. R. Howson's assertion that $25 dividends had been repeatedly promised to "every adult in Alberta" during the election was made plain when Mr. Unwin pointed out that basic dividends are only promised to "every bona fide citizen in the province."
